STATUS

They are "fee collected" air service labels known as "Angola grays".

FORGERIES

These were produced by Casa Molder. Clean, irregular, hand-made perforations. Casa A Molder was a well-known Portuguese stamp dealer in Lisbon and produced the fake labels to allow collectors to put at least something of the issue in their albums. They are very well produced, and are easily identifiable. The perforation is irregular, and the original boxing has breaks in it. With the Molder fake, the printer took more care, so there are no breaks in the boxing.

ACCEPTANCE

The Angolan GRAY LABELS are only listed in Michel, Sanabris and Sillombra and for this reason few collectors are aware of their existence or status. The Gray Labels were used only inside Angola, and in most instances, senders had to bring letters to the Post Office for weighing and the postal clerk would then apply the grey label accordingly. They were thus not actually sold to the public as stamps. Also, it was not possible to openly buy these labels in mint sheets, or in fact in any large quantity. This further limited their standing and availability. Only as they were being phased out did an enterprising dealer obtain some 200 sets for sale to the market. After this, remnants were purchased, but in very small quantities. Status is therefore questionable, although rarity is assured.
